Short presentation

Background

I have degrees in chemistry, education, and chemistry education from universities in the United Kingdom, the Netherlands, Czech Republic, and Indonesia. My professional background as a school teacher, curriculum coordinator, workshop leader, and educational researcher in international schooling dovetails my perpetual interest in science and science education.

Programmes

My research programmes are centred on epistemic orientations in higher science education. Within the line of research in laboratory education, I investigate various aspects of student learning during experimental work conceptualised as epistemic practice, viz. epistemic affect, conation (in an Aristotelian perspective), embodied and epistemic cognition, multimodality, and materiality. I also develop a theoretical framework and working model for the integration of six domains of learning in the lab, mainly informed by science studies and the learning sciences. In the IQ-Lab research project, I have led a work package focussed on systematic review of empirical literature and faculty's deliberation of student learning. In the near future, the programme will be geared towards elucidation of epistemic practices in higher science education, using insights from neuroscience, psychology, and data science.

Methodological Interests

Philosophical inquiry

(Quantitative) ethnography

Structural equation modelling

Epistemic network analysis

Artefact-based cognitive focus groups

Multimodal discourse analysis

Hermeneutic phenomenology

Grounded theory

Critical policy analysis

Educational design research

Mixed methodology

Systematic review

Research synthesis

Historical narrative analysis

Teaching

I teach courses in science education (preservice teachers) and university pedagogy (PhDs, postdocs, faculty, medical professionals). A new course in chemistry education (inservice teachers) is open for application, to be funded by Novo Nordisk Foundation. I also lead workshops in laboratory education (faculty, laboratory assistants and technicians). In the past, I taught in laboratories of general and environmental chemistry.

Supervision

I provide research and collegial supervision. At BSc and MSc levels, I supervise projects in chemistry education, laboratory pedagogy, IBSE and PBL. I am open to diverse topics and diverse student backgrounds. It helps if you know my work and how my expertise would help you. At PhD level, I am keen on supervising projects in higher science education. When inquiring, please enclose a brief cv with your preliminary ideas of the project and funding.

Pedagogical Development

I support scholarship of teaching and learning within SCIENCE and SUND, particularly the ones focussed on inquiry-based, research-based, and problem-based frameworks. I work with colleagues from both physical and chemical sciences and provide professional consultancy strongly anchored in research. My experience working at the Netherlands Institute for Curriculum Development lays a robust foundation for development work related to higher science education curricula and strategic policies.

Academic Service

I serve on the Editorial Board of Journal of Research in Science Teaching (Wiley) and the scientific committee of the International Conference on Chemistry Education (IUPAC). I have peer-reviewed in various journals, including Chemistry Education Research and Practice (Royal Society of Chemistry), Higher Education (Springer), Journal of Chemical Education (American Chemical Society), and International Journal of Science Education (Taylor & Francis).

Hobbies

In my spare time, I sing in choirs, working on a vaudeville repertoire ranging from Tallis to Macmillan, von Bingen to Stravinsky. I was a choral scholar at an Edinburgh cathedral and currently sing with Vokalensemble Willemoes in Copenhagen.

Qualifications
